

CONTRIBUTORS

J. Budziszewski (Ph.D. Yale University, 1981) is a member of the Departments of Government and Philosophy at the University of Texas, and studies the natural law and self-deception. His most recent books are The Revenge Of Conscience: Politics And The Fall Of Man (1999) and Written On The Heart: The Case For Natural Law (1997)

The Rev. Joseph M. de Torre is University Professor Emeritus of Social and Political Philosophy at the University of Asia and the Pacific in Manila, Philippines. He has published more than twenty books and numerous articles. His latest book is entitled Contemporary Philosophical Issues in Historical Perspective.

Gregory Doolan is on the faculty of the Catholic University of America. He has recently published an article in The Thomist 63 (1999) entitled "The Relation of Culture and Ignorance to Culpability in Thomas Aquinas".

Desmond FitzGerald is Professor Emeritus at the University of San Francisco. He attended the lectures of Maritain and Gilson at St Michael's, University of Toronto, as an undergraduate in 1940s. He holds a B.A. and an M.A. from Toronto and an M.A. in political science and a Ph.D. in philosophy from the University of California at Berkeley. He taught at the University of San Francisco from 1948 to 1998.

Timothy Fuller, professor of political science and acting president of Colorado College, is the editor of Leading and Leadership and The Voice of Liberal Learning: Michael Oakeshott on Education.

John R. Goodreau received his Ph.D. from the Catholic University of America.

Catherine Green is an Assistant Professor of Philosophy at Rockhurst University in Kansas City where she teaches general philosophy and ethics. She has an MS in Nursing from the University of San Diego, as well as an MA and Ph.D. in Philosophy from The Catholic University of America. She has published articles and reviews on Yves R. Simon's theories of freedom and practical knowledge as well as on ethical issues in nursing and the health sciences.

William Haggerty is the chair of the Philosophy Department at Gannon University. He has published articles and reviews in Augustinian Studies, Laval Theologique et Philosophique, and The Catholic Social Science Review.

James G. Hanink is a Professor of Philosophy at Loyola Marymount University, Los Angeles, and Associate Editor for the New Oxford Review. He is working on a study of the personalist movement, with a special focus on its implications for political transformation. With his wife, Elizabeth, he is active in a pro-life ministry in Los Angeles.

Jeanne M. Heffernan is Assistant Professor of Political Science at Pepperdine University. A political theorist with a strong interest in the Catholic natural law tradition, she has reviewed books on Jacques Maritain and Yves R. Simon for The Review of Politics and has recently published an essay on the Thomistic grounds for public support of the arts in Beauty, Art, and the Polis, published by the American Maritain Association (2000).

John P. Hittinger is professor of philosophy at the United States Air Force Academy and coeditor of Liberalism at the Crossroads: An Introduction to Contemporary Liberal Theory and its Critics, and author of articles on Jacques Maritain, Yves R. Simon, and John Locke Russell Hittinger is Warren Professor of Catholic Studies and Research Professor of Law at the University of Tulsa.

Richard Lemp is Professor of English at the Air Force Academy. His most recent work includes co-editing Genesis of Flight: the Aeronautical History Collection of Colonel Richard Gimbel (University of Washington Press) and translating Brig. Gen. Lucien Robineau's "French Military Aeronautics Before and During the Great War" in Airpower: Promise and Reality, edited by Mark K. Wells (Imprint Press).

V. Bradley Lewis is assistant professor in the School of Philosophy of the Catholic University of America. His research concerns the nature and influence of classical natural right in political philosophy and jurisprudence. He has contributed articles to Polity, History of Political Thought, The Southern Journal of Philosophy, and Communio.

Nicholas C. Lund-Molfese, M.A., J.D. is Director of the Integritas Institute of the John Paul II Newman Center at the University of Illinois at Chicago. In addition to developing and implementing programs in ethics within the various professional colleges of UIC, he is currently editing one book on suffering and another on Christian approaches to healthcare.

John G. Trapani, Jr. has published several essays on various aspects of Maritain thought, most particularly aesthetics and epistemology. A Professor of Philosophy at Walsh University in North Canton, Ohio, he is currently serving as the President of The American Maritain Association. In addition, he is active as a professional musician and bandleader.

Deborah Wallace Ruddy received her Ph.D. from Boston College; she is presently on the faculty of The University of St. Thomas, St. Paul Minnesota.

Henk E. S. Woldring is professor of political philosophy at the Free University in Amsterdam and a member of the First Chamber (Senate) of the parliament of the Netherlands for the Christian Democratic Party since 1999.

Michael Woodward is Professor of Church History and Reference Librarian, St. John Vianney Theological Seminary, Archdiocese of Denver. He received his Ph.D. in Medieval Studies from University of Notre Dame.