

Contributors:

George Anastaplo is Professor of Law, Loyola University of Chicago; Lecturer in the Liberal Arts, The University of Chicago; and Professor Emeritus of Political Science and of Philosophy, Dominican University. His most recent books are The Thinker as Artist: from Homer to Plato and Aristotle, Abraham Lincoln: A Constitutional Biography and But Not Philosophy: Seven Introductions to Non-Western Thought.

James Arraj is the co-director of Inner Explorations, an extensive website (www.innerexplorations.com) where Christian mysticism and metaphysics meet Jungian psychology, Eastern religions and a new sense of the earth. He is the author of a dozen books including Mysticism, Metaphysics and Maritain, The Mystery of Matter and From St. John of the Cross to Us.

Fr. Joseph M. de Torre, of the Opus Dei prelature, is the University Professor of Social and Political Philosophy at the University of Asia and the Pacific in Manila. He has published more than twenty books and hundreds of articles and essays.

Robert A. Delfino is Assistant Professor of Philosophy at St. John's University. He received his Ph.D. from State University of New York at Buffalo. His primary interests are in metaphysics and ethics, with special attention to Aquinas and Aristotle. He has recently published "Aristotle on the Value of the History of Philosophy for Philosophy." He maintains the official webpage of the American Maritain Association.

Raymond Dennehy is Professor of Philosophy at the University of San Francisco, where he teaches metaphysics, epistemology, bioethics and political philosophy. He is a former president of the American Maritain Association, editor of the anthology, Christian Married Love and author of Reason and Dignity and the forthcoming book, Anti-Abortionist at Large. He has also published many scholarly articles and is a frequently invited guest on television, radio, and university campuses to discuss contemporary ethical issues.

John M. Dunaway is professor of French and Interdisciplinary Studies at Mercer University in Macon, Georgia. His published writings have centered on French religious writers, especially Maritain, Julien Green, and Simone Weil. He has served on the Executive Board and as Vice-President of the American Maritain Association.

Robert Fallon is currently completing his doctoral dissertation in the musicology program at the University of California, Berkeley. An editor of Repercussions: Critical and Alternative Viewpoints on Music and Scholarship, he has written on twentieth-century musical cultures in France, England, Germany and the United States.

Desmond FitzGerald is Professor Emeritus of Philosophy, University of San Francisco. Born in Toronto, he studied at St. Michael's College, University of Toronto, where he attended the lectures of Jacques Maritain in 1942 and 1943. He received his M.A. in Philosophy from the Pontifical Institute of Mediaeval Studies, studying under Étienne Gilson and Anton C. Pegis. He completed a second M.A. and his Ph.D. in Political Science at the University of California, Berkeley, writing on "The Political Thought of Jacques Maritain." He taught for 50 years at the University of San Francisco.

William J. (Joe) Fossati received his B.A. and M.A. degrees in history from the University of Arizona, and his Ph.D. in modern European history from the University of Kansas. His major field is the history of La belle époque in France, and has conducted extensive research on the philosophy of Henri Bergson. He has taught history at Rockhurst University since 1986.

W. Matthews Grant is a doctoral candidate in Philosophy at Fordham University and recently completed a fellowship at the Aquinas Center of Theology at Emory University.

Catherine Green is Assistant Professor of Philosophy at Rockhurst University in Kansas City. She has an M.S. in Nursing from the University of San Diego, as well as an M.A. and Ph.D. in Philosophy from The Catholic University of America. She has published articles and reviews on Yves R. Simon's theories of freedom and practical knowledge as well as on ethical issues in nursing and the health sciences.

James G. Hanink is a Professor of Philosophy at Loyola Marymount University, Los Angeles, and Associate Editor for the New Oxford Review. He is working on a study of the personalist movement, with a special focus on its implication for philosophy and theology. He is active in a pro-life ministry in Los Angeles.

Gregory J. Kerr is Associate Professor of Philosophy at DeSales University. He is a past editor of the Maritain Notebook, the newsletter of the American Maritain Association. Having received his M.A. from Boston College and his Ph.D. from Fordham University, he has published several articles on the aesthetics and epistemology of Jacques Maritain.

John F. X. Knasas is Professor of Philosophy in the Center for Thomistic Studies at the University of St. Thomas, Houston. He is the author of The Preface to Thomistic Metaphysics: A Contribution to the Neo-Thomist Debate on the Start of Metaphysics (Peter Lang, 1990) and of many articles on Thomistic metaphysical concerns.

John F. Morris is an Assistant Professor of Philosophy at Rockhurst University. His area of specialization is ethics and medical ethics, with a background in Aquinas and medieval philosophy. He has published several articles and is currently editing a volume titled, Medicine, Healthcare, & Ethics: New Essays from the Christian Tradition. He is currently a member of the Ethics and Human Values Committee at St. Joseph Health Center in Kansas City, and a member of the American Occupational Therapy Association's Commission on Standards and Ethics.

Ralph Nelson has taught philosophy and political science at the University of Windsor since 1961, and is now Professor Emeritus. His research and publications are in the areas of French moral, social, and political philosophy and in democratic theory. He is the author of numerous articles on Yves R. Simon and Jacques Maritain and is the co-editor of Yves R. Simon's Foresight and Knowledge.

Douglas A. Ollivant is an Assistant Professor of Political Science at the United States Military Academy and a Major in the United States Army. An Indiana University Political Science Ph.D., his research focuses on Catholic responses to contemporary liberalism. He has also done work on the American founding and in military ethics. He is a past Vice-President of the American Maritain Association.

Matthew Pugh is Assistant Professor of Philosophy at Providence College. He previously taught at Ohio Dominican College, Ohio State University, and the University of St. Thomas in Houston. His interests include Thomistic metaphysics, epistemology and ethics, and he is currently researching the connections between Aquinas' understanding of the transcendentals and his moral philosophy.

Steven J. Schloeder is a registered architect, writer, and Ph.D. candidate at the Graduate Theological Union in Berkeley. He is the founder of Liturgical Environs, an architectural company specializing in new and remodeled Catholic Church projects, and is the author of Architecture in Communion: Implementing the Second Vatican Council through Liturgy and Architecture.

Christopher H. Toner is a doctoral candidate in philosophy at the University of Notre Dame, and is currently writing a dissertation on virtue ethics. His research interests include contemporary ethics and political philosophy, medieval philosophy, and French neo-Thomism.

John G. Trapani, Jr. is Professor of Philosophy and Chair of the Humanities Division at Walsh University in North Canton, Ohio. He received a B.A. from Boston College and a Ph.D. from St. John's University in Jamaica, New York. He has written extensively on Maritain's aesthetics/epistemology, including his dissertation: "The Interrelation of Poetry, Beauty, and Contemplation in The Philosophy of Jacques Maritain." John served as President of the American Maritain Association, 2000-2001 and he is active as a professional musician and bandleader.

Henk E. S. Woldring is Professor of Political Philosophy at the Free University in Amsterdam. He is the author of many books, including Karl Mannheim: The Development of his Thought. In 1999 he was elected as a member of the First Chamber of the Netherlands Parliament.

Thomas F. Woods is professor of English at the University of Montevallo in Alabama, where he has taught since 1980. He is a graduate of John Carroll University, and studied English at John Carroll and Miami University before completing his Ph.D. in English at Ohio State.